A New Era in Business Collaboration

Leadership Institute is first U.S Institute to offer programs in Collaborative Excellence to support International Collaborative Standards

Naples, Florida -- May 15,2017

Global Standard for Collaborative Relationship Management

Recently the International Standards Organization (ISO, Geneva Switzerland) formalized and issued Standard 44001 to enable organizations to improve collaboration – both within and between organizations.

Collaborative Relationship Management Systems is more than just a standard: it's a framework used to deploy best practices for cooperation, alignment, alliance development, teamwork, and trust-building.

The standard:

- applies to a wide range of organizations, including business, government, and not-for profit organizations.
- Is intended to improve the performance, productivity, and effectiveness of organizations, teams, alliances, project delivery, and multi-partner relationships

Institute Supports Leaders on the Collaborative Excellence Journey

The International Collaborative Leadership Institute (www.ICLInstitute.org) announced today its readiness to deliver a full set of training and education programs for leaders organizations that intend to become certified in Collaborative Business Management. The Institute's co-Founder, Robert Porter Lynch, has been a though leader and driving force behind the frameworks and practices that underpin the newly issued standards.

Mr. Lynch stated:

The ISO Standards of Collaborative Excellence represent the first time in the long history of commerce that companies can verify the quality of their suppliers, customers, and alliance partners.

We know from years of experience that the best practices underpinning these standards triple the chance of a successful collaboration, thus reducing risks dramatically. Often we see 20% improvements in competitive advantage and significant increases in profitability as non-value added work is eliminated and trust-based relationships are built.

Future employees, particularly Millenials, will have a standard of excellence to assess their fit in an organization.

Ultimately, this may be the beginning of a sea-change in the way organizations -- from business to government-- are led and managed.
